

WOMAN TALKS ON WOMAN'S RIGHTS

RESTRICTIONS OF PRESENT OUT-GROWTH OF PRACTICES OF DISTANT PAST

By Associated Press

LONDON, May 5.—The recent discussion in England of the question of compelling professional women, particularly teachers and doctors, to give up their positions after marriage, has brought a remarkable statement from Dr. Maire C. Slopes, a well known scientist. There are, she says, three inevitable results from the policy of compelling women to give up their professions:

(1) It prevents admirable women of a certain type of character from marrying at all.

(2) It deprives the community of the work and the experience of another type of women, who does not easily give up her private life in marriage.

(3) It breeds other women of meager or bad character, who demand that men be both sexual women as well as humanitarians. As it is, while one "militant" demands the right of women's separation from their employers, the other is anxious to see how soon she can get rid of marriage.

In the last alternative, Dr. Slopes sees "an own expression of personal wants of marriage in which I have discerned Our inimitable insertion, restrictions, legal hindrances and encroachments on her liberty imposed on a married woman of the community of sections of it, has brought me to the point of being ready to condemn in any of my educated women friends a life lived off in seclusion and binding union with a man to whom she is not legally married."

Only by treating married women properly, by leaving them the freedom of choice allowed to all other individuals, adds the writer, can innumerable evils be avoided.

The advent of the new Albanian principality has been a great boon to stamp dealers and stamp collectors. The temporary occupation of San Giovanni di Medua by the Montenegrins and the similar occupation of Durazzo by the Serbians gave the philatelists their first opportunity. Then appeared the first Albanian stamps proper, in the shape of the old Turkish stamps surcharged with the Albanian double-headed eagle. Though not many of these were issued they gave rise to considerable speculation, and as much as ten dollars was paid for a single piece.

the hope that the price will rise still further many possessors are keeping back their stock.

Since then Albania has had her own special stamps made. They are of six different denominations expressed in centimes, called in Albanian qinis. They bear a portrait of the national hero, Scanderberg, but the Austrian printer of the stamps altered it to Scanderberg, obviously not knowing that the word "berg" is the Albanian title of nobility, and took it for a German name with the common termination "berg," a mountain. On the day Prince William arrived these stamps were sold with the special imprint: "7 Mars-1914 Froiti Mbreti" (1914) which means March 1914, (the year of the death of Scanderbeg.) "Long live the Mbreti (Emperor or Prince)!"

The stamps were quickly sold out and resold at three or four times their face value.

The Labor Party has decided to place at least 100 candidates in the field of the next general election.

Already 93 candidates have been decided upon by conferences convened under the constitution of the party. Of these 93 seats are now held by Laborites, 18 by Liberals and 17 by Unionists. Forty-nine of these involve three-cornered contests which Mr. Ainslie said in his speech at Landmarks generally in support of the Constitution. On split votes resulting the Unionists lost 11. The three three-cornered contests are due to Liberal efforts to make such seats for the Liberal Party as may be remaining. In a number of cases, probably, it is felt, only split votes will decide.

Now there are about 12 independent candidates scattered in the field forcing three-cornered contests in 18 constituencies now held by Liberals and four by Unionists.

How to Become a Poet.

"The art of writing poetry is very difficult at first, but it becomes easy by practice," says an English writer.

The best way for a beginner is to take a line from another poem, then he should construct a line to fit it. Then, having won his start, he should strike out the first line (which of course does not belong to him) and go ahead. When the poet has written three verses of four lines each, he should run out and find a girl whom he likes, and read it to her."

Possibly Too Frank.

A clergyman recently told his audience that young ladies and gentlemen should not entirely trust in their courtships—they should tell each other their weak points. Understandings have been broken off in his congregation.

Scene From Second Act of "Within the Law"

at The Grand Matinee and Night, May Ninth

Amusements

Within The Law

Bertrand Bedford, author of the play "Within the Law," which comes to the Grand on Saturday, May 6th for two performances matinee and night, has chosen for the theme of his new drama a cross-section out of the life of a poor ship-girl, who after serving time for theft, she didn't perpetrate, runs to "get even" which she does by marrying the son of her former employer. She is not in love, nor does she believe she is in love with Dick Gifford, but marries him to bring divorce to his father, who was the real means of sending her to prison. The employer, in order to make an example and stop the pretty thievery which has been going on in his department store, takes away her name and gives her a name so she decides that she will "get even" by taking his name, thus causing the much-discreased that will follow the young man's marriage with an ex-con. meantime, following her release from prison, she organizes a band of "smokes" and takes her revenge upon society by helping in various nefarious money-procurer schemes that are never fully avenged. Within the Law" she even gets the aid of lawyers to protect her. Finally, Mary Turner is warned by the police to leave the city. She refuses, and a "steel pistol" a member of the Right-Handed Society, who will turn him over on his instant capture—calls on her and says her aid is a burglary which he promises to commit. She refuses the proposition, because she will be sealing which is set "Within the Law." One of her lieutenants, a low-life character although he is a fighter, falls in with the scheme without her knowledge. The night of the burglar, the police who have been informed by "steel pistol" surround the house. It is the home of Mrs. Dick Gifford, mother of the employer, who is about to be released when Mary learns of the plan and warns Dick to be on the alert of the Marne Telegraph. She calls over the phone. They refuse to make their escape without first securing the explosive material, so Mary comes to think that as she expects the "steel pistol" will not be able to enter the house until the burglar comes into the room in his plan to see the former cannot, since the "pistol" with a revolver is armed with a Maxim Patent Mine. At length overcome by the fatality, the girl manages to allow the men to make their escape, and as she is trying to convince her husband that he ought to leave her, so that she can make a hurried departure the Police Inspector who has been awaiting the signal of his men to make the count, walks into the darkened room. A dialogue occurs in which the girl and her husband, who will not leave her, try to bluff out and are almost successful, when a searchlight from the Metropolitan tower sweeps through the window illuminating the "steel pistol" stretched out on the floor. The Inspector is making an astounding arrest when the girl is in a stirring, dramatic speech forbids it, proclaiming that the man was shot by her husband in the defense of his home, the murderer being therefore clearly "Within the Law."

This is part of the plot of Mr. Veiller's play, which is not only full of thrills and stirring situations, but is interspersed with comedy in the lightest vein. The "proof of the pudding is in the eating." "Within the Law" ran for an entire year at the Eltinge Theatre, New York City and will be given here with a splendid cast including well-known metropolitan players.

HOW YOU MAY THROW AWAY YOUR GLASSES

The statement is made that thousands wear eye-glasses who do not really need them. If you are one of these unfortunate, then these glasses may be ruining your eyes instead of helping them. Thousands who wear these "windows" may prove for themselves that they can dispense with glasses if they will get the following prescription filled at once. Go to the Amarillo Drug Company or to any active drug store and get a bottle of Optona, fill a two ounce bottle with water and drop in one Optona tablet. With this harmless liquid solution bathe the eyes two to four times daily and you are likely to be astonished at the results right from the start. Many who have been told that they have astigmatism, eye-strain, cataract, sore eyelids, sun-stroke, conjunctivitis and other eye disorders, report wonderful benefits from the use of this prescription. Get this prescription filled and use it; you may so strengthen your eyes that glasses will not be necessary. Thousands who are blind, or nearly so, or who wear glasses would never have required them if they had cared for their eyes in time. Give your eyes before it is too late! Do not become one of those victims of neglect. Eye-glasses are only like crutches and every few years they must be changed to fit the ever-increasing weakened condition, so better see if you can, the many others, get clear, healthy, strong magnetic eyes through the prescription here given. Scenes You Will Never Forget

The architectural beauties of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco will live long in the memory of those who view them. They are creations of the most famous architects, painters and sculptors of the world and grouped, as they are, around the beautiful courts of the exposition grounds, form a picture never to be forgotten.

Another artistic feature of this great exposition will be the electrical illumination. By a system of flood lighting, a soft light will pervade the courts at night, revealing the facades of the palaces and the natural colors of the flowers. By peculiar and novel lighting devices, the statuary and mural paintings will be made to appear with even heightened effect. Concealed batteries of powerful projectors will cause tens of thousands of specially prepared glass "jewels," hung tremulous upon the towers, to flash like great diamonds, rubies and emeralds. Searchlights of great power will weave in the night sky auroras of ever-changing color.

But greater even than these are the scenes of beauty and grandeur en route to this exposition, including the glories of mountain, valley, sea and sky in California itself. The opportunity of enjoying such natural beauties and such a great exposition at the end of the journey comes but once in a lifetime. If you are one of the women nominated to go in our party, be sure of your election. A wonderful trip awaits you.
